

Have you been blacklisted by the NRA?

The National Rifle Association has targeted hundreds of national organizations, prominent artists, journalists and community leaders on a 19-page blacklist.

When you see who's on it, you're going to want to be there with them.

All of these people, says the NRA, have lent their "names and notoriety" to the "anti-gun" cause.

Sure enough, there's the notorious Oprah Winfrey, Sean Connery, Julia Roberts, Bruce Springsteen and Jimmy Carter.

Alongside the NAACP, United Methodist Church, ABC, American Medical Association, AARP and the American Jewish Congress.

Did you make the list? Go to www.NRAblacklist.com and find out. If you're not there yet, join today. Your voice will help us stop the NRA from achieving its extremist goals—including its two top priorities:

▶ The NRA wants illegal military-style rapid-fire assault weapons that have been banned for a decade put back on our streets.

◀ "Our members don't want to buy their songs, don't want to go to their movies and don't want to support their careers."

--National Rifle Association CEO Wayne LaPierre

How NRA leaders intend to punish doctors, children, Methodists, seniors, mayors and others is not explained.

▶ The NRA wants legal immunity for reckless gun dealers like Bull's Eye Shooter Supply, who armed the D.C. snipers and sold guns used in at least 52 other crimes. It would slam the courthouse door shut on the victims of gun crimes.

The NRA is out of control. Its excessive influence on Congress and on the White House is just one more example of how badly this country is going in the wrong direction.
