

Senators,
if police officers
sat in your seats
today,
do you think
they'd vote
to put Uzis and AK-47s
back
on the streets?

Do you think they want to face again the military-style rapid-fire rifles they fought so hard to ban 10 years ago?

Do you think they want to put these lethal weapons back in the hands of violent gangs and drug traffickers?

Since the 1994 assault weapons ban took effect, assault weapon use in crime has plunged 65%.

Wiping this life-saving law from the books now would be a terrible step backwards for America. Every national law enforcement group in America, from chiefs of police to sheriffs to rank-and-file cops on the beat, joined arms to get this ban passed. 77% of America's voters want it renewed. Two-thirds of voters who own guns agree.

Senators: If police officers were casting your votes today, the assault weapons ban would be renewed 100 to zip. Stand with America's police. Save the assault weapons ban.
